THE EXHIBITION

A new exhibition in the L. Tom Perry Special Collections (1130 HBLL) will be opened on October 8, 2008. The exhibition, In Honorable Remembrance: Thomas L. Kane and the Latter-day Saints will feature various manuscripts, printed items, and photographs from the large Kane Manuscript collection from the Harold B. Lee Library. These materials will assist visitors in better understanding the life and contributions of this important friend of the Latter-day Saints. Accompanying the exhibition will be a series of free public lectures focusing on various aspects of the life of Thomas L. Kane and his important contributions to the Latter-day Saints and their history.

During his visit to the Mormon camps along the Missouri River near what eventually became Council Bluffs, Thomas L. Kane drew several small sketches of various scenes he observed. The drawings were included in a letter sent to his parents in Philadelphia, July 25, 1846. This sketch shows the growing encampments of the Mormons in western Iowa.
